Amano Releases New CP-5000 Series Electronic Time Recorder

Roseland, New Jersey – May 11, 2009 – Amano Cincinnati, Inc., a world-class manufacturer who designs, manufactures, and distributes an array of time clocks and time and attendance systems to small businesses and large enterprises launches the CP-5000 Series. The CP-5000 consecutive print time recorder is a new and improved version of its predecessor, the CP-3000 Series. This fully automatic electronic time clock eliminates overprinting through the use of mark sensing technology. The model automatically feeds the time card and an optical sensor detects the previous mark. Time and date are printed vertically on the time card. Amano is one of the only manufacturers to offer a consecutive print time recorder to serve the preferences of this market niche.

Visually, the CP-5000 sports a new faceplate design to distinguish it from its predecessor, but the advances and innovation are practically unnoticeable and primarily internal – incorporating all new interior components and circuitry. The redesigned optical sensing and transport system, along with a fixed-width card slot, further improve the accuracy, repeatability, and reliability of the CP-5000 clock. The clock is programmable for weekly steps to activate additional features as two-color print, a built-in buzzer, and an external signal relay usually used to trigger audible alerts. The clock offers a variety of selectable imprint formats and its configuration can be password protected. The CP-5000 automatically adjusts for Daylight Saving Time and a battery backup retains time, date, and user settings in the clock memory. An optional full power reserve kit provides for continuous operation in the event of an electrical outage.
